'TRUTH HEARING' FOR WITNESS ASKED

Nicaragua Chief Dies At 60 Of Bullet Wounds

Assassination Effort Proves Success; Son Voted Into Top Spot

PANAMA (AP)—President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua died today of an assassin's bullet wounds. The announcement of the Nicaraguan strongman's death was made by Dr. Gonzales Revilla as he left Somoza's room in a U. S. hospital in the Canal Zone.

Somoza was brought to Panama for treatment after he was shot four times last Friday night down at a party and dance as he was preparing to seek another six year term as president.

The assassin, Roberto Lopez Perez, a 27-year-old Nicaraguan journalist emptied a revolver at the 60-year-old president.

Somoza was airlifted to Managua and then to the U.S.-operated Gorgas Hospital in the Panama Canal Zone where he underwent four operations.

A team of doctors, sent by President Eisenhower and headed by Maj. Gen. Leonard Heaton, chief of the U. S. Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, removed bullets from his thigh and spine and operated on two wounds in his forearm and upper arm. One bullet was left buried in his right shoulder.

THE ASSASSIN was killed on the spot by Somoza's guards.

The strongman's son, Luis, 34, was named acting president Friday night by Nicaragua's congress. He had been running the country since the shooting as first vice president designate.

A younger son, Anastasio Jr., 35, West Point educated, is commander of the National Guard, the country's army.

Announcements earlier this week had said that Somoza was improving and that a paralysis condition in his left side caused by one of the bullets had almost completely disappeared.

Somoza was undisputed ruler of Nicaragua for 20 years.

He got his boost up the ladder from the United States. In 1932 he became director of the Nicaraguan army as part of the arrangement for withdrawing of U. S. Marines and the ending of American occupation. He got the post through the influence of Matthew Hanna, the U. S. minister.

From that vantage point, with solid army backing, he rose to control of the government and was elected president, serving from 1936 to 1947. Then for three years, 1940 to 1950, he ruled through his uncle, President Roman Y. Reyes. The uncle died, and Somoza again assumed the office and was elected for another term in 1951.

He was accused of being a dictator by his enemies and of mass great wealth by stealing from the public treasury. Somoza scoffed at these charges.

HE SAID HE would not jail his enemies and allowed Nicaraguans as much political liberty as they could use.

He owned many plantations, a shipping line, and enterprises of all kinds such as gold mines and textile plants. But he said he got rich because he was a good judge of values and worked hard.

During his rule, the country progressed. He imported tractors to replace oxen in the country's backward agriculture, encouraged introduction of new crops such as cotton and rice, stimulated a land-clearing program, and built many miles of highways.

LOS ANGELES DOGCATCHER Donald Baird, 28, got bitten on the wrist, he says, when he picked up that beagle he holds. But the beagle didn't do the biting. He claims it was Mrs. Margery Gomez, 26, shown after he got the law on her. Baird said he found the Gomez pet leashless and licenseless and put it in his truck. He further alleges that Mrs. Gomez ran up, tried to open the truck doors, and he grabbed her wrists. That was the point at which news was made.

Dick Talks Of Adlai's Kidney As Estes Lauds 'Joe Smith'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. Estes Kefauver predicted today the Republicans are going to discover in November that the Joe Smiths have made a "shambles" of their election hopes.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate defined Joe Smith as "the common man," as "the plain, average American."

At the same time, his opposite, Republican Vice President Richard Nixon, aimed a barbed remark about Adlai Stevenson's "other kidney" and headed for Florida and a try at wooing the old folks' vote.

Kefauver's speech, prepared for a Huntington, W. Va., rally, harked back to an attempt by Terry Carpenter, a Nebraska delegate at the Republican National Convention, to nominate a mythical "Joe Smith" for vice president.

Democrats have seized on the incident as a campaign issue and Stevenson, their presidential candidate, has named his chartered campaign plane the "Joe Smith Express."

Kefauver said "Joe Smith and the unceremonious way he was booted out of the Republican National Convention epitomizes just what is wrong with the Republican party."

"When the people of America saw that there was no place in the Republican party for the Joe Smiths of this world," he added, "they started asking themselves whether there was any place in the Republican party for them."

Kefauver contended that Republicans are "concerned only with the past" and offer no future "for young people or for liberals of any kind."

The Democratic presidential nominee's kidney became a campaign topic Friday at Wheeling, W. Va., where Nixon held an airport news conference.

Nixon was asked how President Eisenhower was getting along. He said the President is fit and "in fighting trim," then added:

"By the way, I wonder how Mr. Stevenson's other kidney is doing today?"

Stevenson underwent a kidney operation some time ago. Democrats have raised the question of Eisenhower's own health following his heart attack last year and his June 9 intestinal operation.

Nixon's St. Petersburg address tonight was billed in advance as a "major" exposition of the GOP's program for the nation's elderly persons. It also was expected to contain an attack upon Stevenson's proposals for improving the standard of living of retired and aging men and women.

our ablest high school students today stop their education short primarily for economic reasons," lack of money.

The Democratic candidate outlined this program for dealing with the situation:

1. "WE NEED a national educational policy, and we need it just as urgently as we need a coherent foreign policy and defense policy. The goal of this educational policy must be nothing less than the achievement of the fullest possible development of each individual's capacities and talents.

2. "We have passed the time for action in the commitment of federal funds to aid the states in their educational programs. This federal aid program must include aid for school construction. The bill which was before Congress this year should go far toward meeting this need.

3. "I think we should investigate thoroughly and adopt, unless serious difficulties are disclosed, a national program of college loans or scholarships. I don't think 100,000 boys and girls who want to go on with their schooling and have the stuff to use it should be denied that chance."

Rebels Bombarded

LONDON (AP)—The Admiralty today announced that two Australian destroyers Friday bombarded Communist rebel positions in Malaya. Rebel guerrillas have been fighting British rule since 1948 in the Malayan jungles.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Average farm prices have dropped for the third straight month, the Agriculture Department reports.

Issuing a monthly report Friday, the department said farm prices slid downward about one-half of 1 per cent between mid-August and mid-September.

The report also showed that during the same period average farm family and production expenses decreased over-all about one-third of 1 per cent, thus virtually keeping step with the lower level of prices received.

Since mid-June, farm prices have dropped a total of 4 1/2 per cent. During the six preceding months, they had risen a total of 11 per cent.

The price level in mid-September was a shade above a year ago. But it was 24.9 per cent under the record high of February 1951, in the midst of the Korean War.

Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse said the slight decline in the August-September period indicated to him that the market is "very definitely stabilizing during this harvest."

Morse said he is confident that farm prices are "going to hold". And he said he expects the next movement will reflect a "further strengthening of prices."

The department's crop reporting board said continued sharp decreases in prices received for most commercial vegetables and potatoes, and lower meat prices were "nearly offset" by higher prices received for fruit, cotton and dairy products.

On the other hand, the report said food prices drops figured as the "most important factor" in

U.N. Chief Links Suez, Palestine

Hammarskjold Reports Truce Terms Ignored

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold says the present tense Palestine situation could be improved by establishing "freedom of navigation for Israeli ships" in the Suez Canal.

Hammarskjold adds that conditions also could be improved by strict compliance with the cease-fire agreements he worked out last spring between Israel and her Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria.

The secretary general made these observations in a report to the 11-nation Security Council. It was published Friday shortly before a second council meeting was scheduled for next Friday on the Suez question.

The council will debate a British-French complaint that Egypt's July 26 nationalization of the canal and subsequent refusal to put it under international operation caused a situation likely to endanger peace.

Later it will take up an Egyptian complaint that actions of Britain, France and unspecified other countries over the canal issue are a menace to peace.

WESTERN shippers indicated, meanwhile, that Egypt's operation of the canal since the takeover has prompted them to suspend plans for a costly, time-consuming mass diversion of ships around the Cape of Good Hope.

The volume of traffic moving through the canal returned Friday to near normal with 42 ships in transit—21 in each direction.

Hammarskjold's report was his latest under council resolutions of last April and June dealing with his Middle-East mission. The secretary general obtained the no shooting agreements during his visits to Israel and her Arab neighbors.

He declared the governments concerned failed to exert on their forces "a discipline sufficiently firm to forestall incidents which, step by step, must necessarily undermine the cease-fire."

Ohio Turnpike Healthy On 1st Birthday

CLEVELAND (AP)—Sunday mid-day the Ohio Turnpike is one year old and fairly healthy.

Revenue from the 241-mile, $26,000,000 toll road in this first year will reach $14,825,000, James W. Shocknessy, chairman of the turnpike commission, estimates.

When the bonds were being marketed in the spring of 1952, estimates were made that the first-year revenue would be $20,576,300 and second year revenue $22,224,400. It was forecast then that there would be continuing annual increases for 10 years when income would level out at about $35,403,400.

With a year's experience behind it, the turnpike commission now predicts a 10 per cent increase in revenue during the second year of operation. That would mean an income of about $16,307,500 in the year ahead.

There no longer are optimistic expectations that extra revenue might make possible freeing the road of tolls in about 17 years. The trust agreement schedule calls for retirement of all bonds over a 40-year-period from 1952.

Some 9,730,000 vehicles used the Ohio toll road in its first year, rolling up a total of 750,000 miles. For the 11 months to Sept. 1, the record showed 2.22 deaths from accidents for each 100 million vehicle miles. That compares with a rate of about 4.7 on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, and 3.8 on the New Jersey Turnpike.

POLICE IN NEW YORK are investigating eruptions of teen-age violence that has swept the city, with boys being beaten and newspaper workers attacked. At top, news photographer Len Morgan is treated for a badly cut eye he received when attacked by four youths on Broadway, in midtown, after he shot the picture at bottom. The photo shows a teen-ager fighting to get at another photographer, Philip Greizer, 43. The latter, and copy boy Ralph Gonzalez, 21, were also beaten. Gonzalez is at right, half hidden behind a pole. He may lose sight of an eye. Three of the teen-age assailants were placed under arrest for the unprovoked attack.

him to help line up support from elements in the top Soviet officialdom—Premier Bulganin and Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan.

They pictured Bulganin and Mikoyan as undecided between the pro-Stalin group and the tiny knot of Khrushchev's supporters.

Tito went with Khrushchev to the Soviet leader's villa at Yalta on the Black Sea without advance announcement Thursday, stirring speculation throughout the world.

KHRUSHCHEV had spent eight days in Yugoslavia on what was described as a vacation. His visit here also came unexpectedly. Tito's trip to the Black Sea resort also was called a vacation.

Informal sources in Belgrade said Tito's trip was so urgent that he went despite a strong warning from U. S. Secretary of State Dulles that signs of his possible return to the Soviet camp might jeopardize further American aid to Yugoslavia. They said Dulles' warning arrived during Khrushchev's visit to Belgrade.

The informants hinted that the reasons that prompted Tito to take his unusual air journey would be explained privately to Dulles by Foreign Minister Koca Popovic, now en route to New York for next week's U. N. meeting.

Tito and his entourage were guests of Khrushchev at dinner Friday night, Moscow radio reported. Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov and secret police chief Gen. A. I. Serov also were present.

THE DEFENDANTS in the Pittsburgh case were Steven Nelson, Pittsburgh Communist party leader, and four alleged associates, William Albertson, Benjamin Lowell Careathers, James Hulse Dolson and Irving Weissman. Mazzel testified directly against Careathers and Dolson.

The five were convicted in December, 1953, of conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the government. Each was sentenced to five years imprisonment, but the Supreme Court had agreed to hear arguments on an appeal during the week of Oct. 8.

Justice Department attorneys said there was no precedent for the government's motion.

If a "truth hearing" is held for Mazzel in the Pittsburgh Federal District Court, presumably it would be up to that court to decide whether the convictions should stand or fall. This could involve new trials for all or some of the defendants.

The government contended in its motion that "not one item" of Mazzel's testimony at Pittsburgh was contradicted at the trial and that it had checked his testimony "to the extent possible, by independent sources," before offering him as a witness.

It said, however, it cannot support, or has reason to question, other testimony he has since given in a Pennsylvania criminal case in which he was involved, before the Senate Internal Security committee, and in a state court in Miami, Fla.

The Miami testimony included stories of plans for a Communist invasion of this country, and for assassination of senators and Congress members.

Supreme Court Gets Unusual U.S. Request

Government Reports It Questions Veracity Of Own Spokesman

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today had an unprecedented request from the government—that it "freeze" further proceedings in a pending case until a lower court checks further the veracity of one of the government's own witnesses.

The motion was offered by Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin and Asst. Atty. Gen. William F. Tompkins, who heads the Justice Department's Internal Security Division.

It proposed that the trial court in Pittsburgh be allowed to hold hearings on the truthfulness of Joseph D. Mazzel, a government informant reporting to the FBI since 1942, who testified against two of the five defendants convicted of Smith Act violations.

The government said it believed at the 1953 trial, and believes now, that Mazzel's Pittsburgh testimony was truthful. But it said it learned only recently that he had since given sworn testimony in other unrelated cases which it "has serious reason to doubt."

THE DEFENDANTS in the Pittsburgh case were Steven Nelson, Pittsburgh Communist party leader, and four alleged associates, William Albertson, Benjamin Lowell Careathers, James Hulse Dolson and Irving Weissman. Mazzel testified directly against Careathers and Dolson.

Mayor, 30 Others Indicted By Judge

DETROIT (AP)—A one-man grand jury Friday indicted Mayor William W. Voisine of suburban Ecorse and 30 others, including 10 of his city aides, on charges of conspiring to permit gambling in the downriver Detroit community.

The grand juror, Circuit Judge Theodore R. Bohm, hit hard at Ecorse affairs, charging widespread graft giving and taking among police, city officials and gamblers.

They were the second indictments returned by the grand jury which on Aug. 1 opened a probe of corruption in several Detroit area communities.

Ike Overrules Ellis Island Sale

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has overruled the General Services Administration plan to sell Ellis Island.

The White House said the President acted in the belief some way may be found to preserve the historic entry point through which some 15 million immigrants have passed.

The Immigration Service has not used the island in New York Harbor since Nov. 12, 1954. GSA had advertised for bids, to be opened Nov. 19, for sale to private interests. The area is appraised at $6,277,000.

Oldtimer Tunes By CHS Band Highlight Game

The Circleville High School marching band presented its usual good evening of entertainment last night between halves of the Circleville - Wilmington football game.

With a large group of moms and dads present for the Parents' Night game, the CHS musicians featured a special theme called, "When Grandpa was a Lad".

The drum major and majorettes, dressed in clothes of 1890 vintage, pleased the spectators by singing barber shop quartet style some of the songs grandpa loved. To make the scene more realistic, band members formed red stripes.

Proving that the grandfolds were light-footed in their day, the musicians and majorettes cut some lively capers on the gridiron.

The evening's entertainment was concluded with the playing of the CHS alma mater, "The Red and The Black".

Deer Leads Motorist On Local Road

Thousands of Ohioans every year get a special opportunity to note the beauty of the state's wildlife, but few can claim an experience like that described by Genevieve Grubb of Darbyville.

"I was driving along on the London-Circleville pike one moonlight night not so long ago when suddenly, right in front of my car, I saw a beautiful full-grown doe—running a short distance ahead of the car.

"Of course I slowed up immediately to admire the animal's beauty. I've seen deer before, but this was the first one I've seen around this part of the state.

"Every time it started to turn off the road it seemed blinded by the glare of the headlights, so kept running ahead of me. I guess this went on for about a quarter of a mile before it turned and disappeared among the trees.

"It was beautiful."

Teachers Attend Workshop Session

Mrs. Helen Nesbitt Branham, a graduate of Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., served as arithmetic consultant at a workshop session held for elementary teachers of the Circleville public school system.

Mrs. Branham urged teachers to try to explain to pupils why they use the various methods to solve arithmetic problems, instead of letting them be guided merely by memorized mechanics.

She had high praise for the quality of her teacher staff here. She said she found them far above the average group she works with during her travels from school to school.

Farmers Warned On Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government says that nearly 120,000 Ohio farmers are eligible for gasoline tax refunds.

But if they don't act by Monday, the deadline for mailing application's for the refund, it will be too late to collect.

A law enacted by the last Congress says that for every gallon of gasoline used for farming in the first six months of 1956, a farmer has a two-cent refund coming.

Census Bureau and Internal Revenue Service figures show that in 1954, operators of 139,165 Ohio farms used gasoline and other petroleum products. But only 18,128 had presented claims as of last Aug. 31.

6 Children Killed As Home Burns

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Six children perished Friday night in a fire which raged through their small frame home that had once been a barn. The parents and a seventh child were not at home.

The children, four girls and two boys, ranged in age from 3 months to 12 years.

Firemen, forced to subdue the stubborn flames before they could enter the single story, four room home, found the bodies along with that of the family dog.

The mother of the victims, Mrs. Romano Vallarini, 36, told authorities she had taken her son, Joseph, 10, with her when she left the house about 6:30 p. m. to search for her husband, Pete, 36.

'Liberal Dynamic' Candidate Sure

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—The "Liberal Dynamic" candidate for President won't have his name on the Rhode Island ballot this fall.

Francis L. Weimer of Los Angeles mailed his nomination papers to the secretary of state, but he left blank the space which calls for 500 signatures.

He suggested the secretary have his friends "scribble in the names."

And if there is any further correspondence, Weimer wrote, it should be addressed to him at the White House after Jan. 1.

Ohio Hog Prices At End Of Week

COLUMBUS (AP)—Prices paid for live hogs at interior Ohio hog markets this week soared 80 cents per hundred pounds higher than last week, although the week's closing price dropped to the previous week's close.

Monday's price of $16.75 was 25 cents above last week's close, while a 25 cent increase on Tuesday and again on Wednesday made Wednesday's price mostly $17.25—highest since June 13.

Thursday's drop of 50 cents and Friday's decline of 25 cents lost all the gain made the first three days of the week, and made Friday's closing price of $16.50, the same as last week's close.

Main reason given for the price sale fresh pork provisions prices. Fresh pork loins were being quoted as much as $6 per hundred pounds lower than last week.

Allen lay near death for five days after the Sept. 19 shooting but is recovering.

THEY WON'T BE LATE!

Maybe they were slow in dressing . . . probably they dawdled a bit over breakfast . . . but if you know the gait of those little legs you can be sure they won't be late.

This is one of the fascinating paradoxes of youth. A child may have to be prodded to get to school on time—yet he doesn't want to be late!

And the paradox has implication for parents as they plan the religious education of their children. Jimmy may seem reluctant about his first trip to Church School . . . and Susan may shed a tear when Mother "leaves" her in the Beginners' Department. But wise parents never delay their youngsters' religious training. It is unfair to handicap a child with a late start in the vital process of moral and spiritual growth.

Inquire at the church of your choice, and bring your child to Church School as soon as he is of age.

And, remember, parents need religious training too! If you do not now attend Church regularly, start with Jimmy and Susan.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

INDISPENSABLE NEWSPAPER

NEWSPAPER WEEK, traditionally observed during the first week of October, is not an occasion on which newspapers blow their own horn. It is dedicated to the proposition that citizens of the United States can with profit be reminded occasionally what a boon this country's free press is to them.

Newspapers of the United States have grown and served enormously under the freedom of the press clause of the Bill of Rights. It is difficult to envision a period such as that of 1719, when the Boston News-Letter, first successful American newspaper—then 15 years old—had a circulation of 300. And it surprises many persons to be told that there was not a single daily newspaper in the United States during the Revolutionary War.

The first newspaper in the American colonies told its readers, "It is designed that the Country shall be furnished once a month (or if any Glut of Occurrences happen, often) with an account of such considerable things as have arrived unto our Notice."

The tempo of the times has increased considerably since then, as a glance at any of today's newspapers will disclose. And Americans today read more newspapers than ever, with total circulation topping 55 million, or one newspaper for every three persons in the country.

Newspaper production costs have skyrocketed in recent years, with newsprint at an all-time high price and over-all overhead at an astronomical figure compared to the recent past. Newspapers not only keep the populace informed of current events and serve and guard the public interest, but they do so at amazingly low cost to the readers.

'OLDER' ART'S APPEAL

SO DIFFICULT has it been to win acceptance for modern art that museums and devotees have felt called upon to "push" the genre at every opportunity.

Now there comes an interesting reaction by an art editor of the New York Times. Aline B. Saarinen writes, "Perhaps the pendulum has swung too far. Whereas for several generations of young people Picasso and Matisse, even Dali and DeKooning, are household — indeed, often, brand — names, the whole roster of Italian Renaissance painters or French eighteenth-century ones are hardly known."

She goes on to contend that there is a correlation between past and present and that too many modern young artists are unaware of the heritage. Miss Saarinen wonders if showings of more of the Old Masters might not "permeate to art schools, so that young painters would work through in school the re-discoveries and imitations so many are now making in puerile and public fashion and thus sooner reach mature, personal, contemporary expression?"

In localities remote from the more numerous art galleries and exhibitions of the big cities, it sounds strange to hear a responsible art critic suggest that more of the "older" art should be displayed. But in all parts of the country the traveling exhibitions shown are of modern art.

Maybe the modern art enthusiasts have made their point—or hopelessly failed to make it with many people—and an occasional contrast would be welcome.

JOYS OF AUTUMN

POETS, AMATEUR and otherwise, have long been given to penning odes to Winter. "Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow" is a favorite phrase, although snow is actually a nuisance and disturbs the even tenor of man's ways.

Still others have rhapsodized over Spring, the vernal season, in spite of the wind and dust which comes with its temperamental weather. "Oh, the flowers that bloom in the Spring, tra la," sounds pretty but does not tell the whole story.

Too few persons have been impressed by the beauties of the Autumn season. The days when Summer's heat has mellowed and all nature has taken on a more leisurely pace. When man can contemplate the results of his labors in the terms of harvest, each day a benediction.

The corn stands ripe in the fields, granaries are full, good for a long Winter made

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Both candidates for the Presidency might be asked a very simple question: What do you intend to do about Americans who are held prisoner in Red China? Maybe the candidates do not know how to answer the question. Maybe these Americans are doomed to rot and die. But there is no harm in asking the question. It might also be asked of every candidate for the United States Senate and every candidate for the House of Representatives.

The Montrose, California, "Ledger" tells of a mother who faced this as a very practical problem. She has a son who joined the Army of the United States of America but found himself working for the United Nations in Korea. He did not know that he was a United Nations soldier; he thought that he was an American soldier. He was mistaken in that. When he was taken captive by the Red Chinese, he discovered how tragically mistaken he was—and still is.

His mother has been trying to discover where her son is. The Montrose "Ledger" says:

"The record shows that her son had been inducted into the Army—the United States Army—and had been given training as a machine gunner. He had been given an army—American Army—uniform, and paid his soldier's wages with American money. He had American officers and he went to Okinawa—an American base. Then he was transhipped to Korea."

Unfortunately from that time on, he ceased to be an American soldier and he became a United Nations soldier. His mother did not know that until she tried to discover what had happened to her son. First he was reported missing, then dead, and finally as a prisoner of the Red Chinese. So the soldier's mother wrote to the Army to ask what about it. It seems as though the Pentagon did not know and had no ideas, but they asked the State Department. Finally the mother did get a letter from Washington. As the aforesaid "Ledger" recites the story:

"She got plenty of sincere expressions of sympathy, but the 'responsibility' was laid at the feet of the Communist Chinese."

But her son never joined the Chinese Communists; he joined the Army of the United States and he assumed, as did his mother, that he continued to belong to the United States and that he was the responsibility of the United States. However, that was only an assumption. He is now held by the Red Chinese as a pawn in a negotiation that has taken more than a year and he is still in prison.

That negotiation over her son and other mothers' sons started immediately after the Conference at the Summit at Geneva and has gone on and on and on ever since. But this American boy is stuck in Red China and there seems to be no way of getting him back to La Crescenta where his mother has a home for him.

Well, there is something to ask candidates about. It is more important than Ike's ileum; it is more important than whether Alger Hiss was a spy or only a red herring. It affects every household whose sons are to be called for military service or who are in the service now. Are those boys Americans or have they become denaturalized by the United Nations? That is the question to ask the candidates.

The candidates, of course, like to talk in broad generalities about the glories of peace, to which Isaiah and Confucius referred in passing. But what this California mother wants to know and we can all join her in asking is what would happen to an American boy who joined in an expedition against the Suez Canal. Would he be an American or a United Nations soldier and if the latter, where does he get off?

It used to be that Americans were never afraid of anything, particularly not of their government. But I notice that the Montrose "Ledger" does not give the mother's name. It only refers to her as a "La Crescenta mother." And it says that she has appealed to friends and neighbors to help her.

The best way to help is to ask the candidates of both parties what they intend to do about Americans who are held prisoner years after wars ended and truce agreements were signed. Maybe somebody will answer in a campaign year.

certain. Soon the wild birds will be flying south. Forgotten are the joys of Spring, the activities of Summer, in the glorious days of Autumn, each month of which has its own sterling virtues.

Browning expressed it better than any of the others. "Spring shall plant," he wrote, "but Autumn garner to the end of time."

September mixes colors for the vivid pagentry of October, while thoughtful November leads us gently toward the days of Winter.

CHAPTER 23

THE TRAIL of Eklund's horse did not last long. The storm was thickening, the rain coming in a downpour, sweeping sheets driven by the wind. It soaked Eklund to the skin, shut off his vision for more than a few feet in any direction. Within half a mile all sign was washed out so that he could no longer follow. Hurried by the storm, night was settling well ahead of schedule.

He had one piece of luck, aided by a knowledge of this type of country. He found a deep coulee with rocky sides and brushy bottom, and back in its depths was a sheltered spot where the cliff made an overhang, dry wood for a fire had collected here, washed by sudden flood waters in some freshet. But he had no supper.

Eklund awoke in a gray dawn to find the air choked with snow, big, wet flakes which melted as they fell. Any notion of further search for the lost cayuse was hopeless. Had it been clear, he might have found something. Now he had to go on foot the long way back to where he'd left his buggy and the other horse.

He found a rabbit, crouched near the coulee mouth, and shot it for breakfast. It was far enough from the Indian camp that the sound wouldn't reach, and no one would be abroad in this storm.

His buggy, when he finally reached it, was just as he had left it, with his bag under the seat. But the other horse, which he had hobbled, was gone.

There was no sign to indicate what had happened, but the storm was lifting, so that he could see for quite a distance, and there was no sign of it anywhere. A hobbled horse wouldn't go far. Someone must have removed the hobbles and ridden the horse away, and the lack of tracks in the mud indicated that it had happened the day before.

Now he had to tramp all the way back to town. Having been a foot soldier, he knew how to walk, but having lived in the West, he found that mode of locomotion as distasteful as did others confronted by the vast spaces of this land. It would take him the rest of this day and all of the next. But it wasn't a matter of choice.

Word that Eklund was out of town on one of his journeys brought Narcissa as near to panic as she had ever known. Looking at the injured Armington, knowing that he must be cared for, conscious of her own limitations, she had a wild impulse to run away. But such a notion would solve no problems.

and the events of the past weeks had been toughening. Her introduction to this country had been a salutary one, and she bit her lip, fighting down the inclination to panic, and studied the situation.

Tom Armington was unconscious, and for that there was nothing that she could do. Time would have to do its own healing—at least, until the doctor returned. It might even be a blessing in disguise. The broken leg must be set and fixed in splints. She dared not wait for Eklund's return, since it might be hours or even days.

Her past experience would be helpful. As a girl, she had often been taken along on her rounds by a doctor in the old community, at first because he'd felt sorry for the orphaned wife, but later because he had found her quick and helpful.

Frequently she had assisted him in small matters, and once she had watched as he sat and splinted a broken arm. The child had been all eyes, and the impression had registered powerfully. Now she tried to remember just how he had gone about it.

The doctor had used a couple of flat pieces of kindling wood from the box behind the kitchen stove, first padding the arm with layers of clean cloth, then wrapping arm and splints tightly with more strips of cloth until all was solid and unbending as a board. She could do that. It was the job of setting the broken bones that frightened her.

Calling High Low, the cook, she boiled water and, wringing out a cloth as hot as she could bear, washed the wound. It was swelling, but outwardly it didn't look bad. She could feel the broken part, and she explained to the cook what must be done. It appeared to be a clean break. The cold sweat started on her face as the two of them pulled at the leg until she felt it slip into place.

Armington groaned, but he did not regain consciousness. Affixing the splint was not so bad.

Then came the waiting, while Eklund did not return. The next afternoon, Armington regained consciousness, but by then fever was beginning to take its toll, induced in part, she judged, by the injury to his head. For two or three hours he tossed restlessly, babbling incoherently. She bathed his face and kept cold packs on it, and gave him cold drinks, which seemed to help, but not much. The ordeal came later in the night.

He had sunk into a restless sleep, only to awake in raving delirium. The night was pitch black outside, the light of the lamp seeming only to accentuate the crowding walls around her, and everyone else, including the anxious girls, was asleep.

"Damn you, Dolf Kinney!" Armington shouted, trying to rise up, so that it took Narcissa's whole weight to keep him in bed. "You keep away from there or I'll kill you!" he raved on. "I'm not afraid of you! And I won't fire her so that she'll be driven to you! I'd sooner see her dead first!"

So that was it! It was on her account that the accident had happened to Armington. Dolf Kinney had made threats, and had followed them up. Though she had no proof, there was no doubt in her mind, and a numbing terror crept in the shadowy darkness. Her thoughts went back to Emil Jacobsen, murdered on his own doorstep without apparent reason—then on to the horseman who had raced to pass them when she and Eklund were only a little way out of town.

The logic of that course of thought was shocking, particularly because it fitted so well. Soon after that, someone had tried to kill Eklund, and he had told her that Emil had been avenged. But what he had not told her was at last starkly clear. That the killer had been in the hire of Dolf Kinney, just as the man who had caused the runaway must have been in his employ. And all on account of her!

Armington finally sank into an uneasy slumber, and by the next day the fever had abated to the point where he was rational when he awoke, able to eat broth as the girls took turns spooning it to him. But as the hours dragged and there was still no sign of the doctor, no word concerning him, Narcissa's fears increased. Her imaginations became torture. Finally, unable to remain still longer, she saddled her horse and rode out for a couple of hours, looking across the empty land, returning in a sort of desperation.

The lamps had been lighted for three hours, and the girls were asleep like their father, when there came a knock at the door. High Low would be long since asleep in his own quarters, and in trying to rouse him to help with the fevered Armington, she had discovered that he slept quite literally like a log. Nothing short of a gunshot would be likely to arouse him.

At the thought, Narcissa crossed to a bureau, pulled out the drawer, and lifted out a six-shooter which Tom Armington carried on occasion. Clutching that, she crossed to the door.

New Drug Found Helpful In Making Children Eat

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IF your youngster fails to grow or gain weight because he is a "finicky" eater, you'll probably be interested in a new drug called Somatovite.

CHS Tigers Fight Favored Wilmington To 6-6 Deadlock

By PAUL SMALLWOOD
Herald Sports Editor

Playing an all-around improved brand of football, the Circleville High School Tigers fought favored Wilmington to a stand-still last night on the local gridiron, the final score standing 6 to 6.

The South Central Ohio League game, played before a large crowd of "Parents' Night" fans saw both teams score their lone touchdowns in the second quarter.

Neither team could hit pay dirt for the remainder of the game, although the Tigers drove to the Hurricane 22 yard line in the third period before losing the ball on a fumble. Again in the last stanza the local gridders threatened several times, but they failed in their efforts to get the pigskin across the goal line.

Controlling the ball most of the hectic fourth quarter, the Tigers, trying desperately to rack up the winning tally, brought the fans to their feet several times with runs that appeared as if they were going all the way.

WITH ONLY a minute remaining of the game, Mike Hosler gathered in a Wilmington punt on his own 35 yard line and rambled to the opponents 30 before he was brought down from behind. Two plays later fullback Don McClaren raced up the middle on a delayed buck for 14 yards, but he too was tripped up from the rear.

Wilmington received the opening kick-off and promptly moved to Circleville's 38 yard line in four plays. The early drive, however, was ended when CHS end Jon Parcher pounced on a fumble.

The visitors threatened again in the first period when they worked the ball all the way to the Tiger 3 yard stripe. With second down and goal to go, the Hurricanes fumbled and the alert CHS line recovered.

Circleville's touchdown came early in the second period following the recovery of another

Wilmington fumble by Parcher, his second ball stealing act of the evening.

In the first sustained attack of the night, the Tigers reeled off 48 yards in nine plays to go out in front 6 to 0. The scoring drive was climaxed by McClaren's 17 yard dash through a nice hole off tackle. Norton Barnes' place-kick for extra point was blocked.

A few minutes later Wilmington quarterback Fields knotted the score when he rounded his own left end, picked up two key blockers and raced 52 yards to the end zone. The visitor's kick for extra point was short and the scoreboard showed Circleville 6, Wilmington 6.

IN THE third period the Tigers marched to the Hurricane 25, holding the pigskin for 11 consecutive downs, only to lose possession on a fumble. The drive was sparked by the hard running of halfbacks Dave Carpenter and Walt Arledge along with able support from Fullback McClaren.

Arledge, a sophomore, was moved up to the varsity earlier this week. His steady performance last night indicates that local grid fans will be seeing quite a bit of the quick-hitting back during the remaining games of the season.

Most of the final quarter was played in Wilmington territory. The CHS line twice stopped the Hurricanes short of a first down on fourth-and-one situations, but the Tigers were unable to fashion an attack good for a winning TD.

Two punts by Hosler set the visitors back near their own end zone, but each time the opponents managed to move the ball out of danger.

The nearest Circleville came to scoring in the final minutes of battle was on Hosler's 34 yard punt return. Breaking into the open at the midfield stripe, the speedy quarterback was finally downed on the Hurricane 30 by the last two defenders.

CHS coaches Steve Brudzinski and Tom Bennett said they were pleased with the team's performance, noting that the boys showed a vast amount of improvement over last week's game at Chillicothe.

THE TWO coaches pointed out that team spirit and aggressiveness was much better last night than in the two previous games. Brudzinski went on to say that he was especially pleased with the work of his new backfield combination, explaining that Hosler, Carpenter and Arledge were all three playing at new positions with only a week's practice.

On the line, Bennett praised the performance of Gary Phifer, Rod Shasteen, Bob McClure, Larry Lemley and several other boys.

However, the coaches said that the team still needs a lot of work, especially in the pass offense and defense departments.

DROP KICKS
The CHS scoreboard was in good working order last night, thanks to the repair work done by local electricians.

Sitting in the press box, and probably calling every play to himself, was Dick Banks who suffered a broken leg in the Chillicothe game last week. The three-year veteran quarterback will be out for the rest of the season.

Each team completed only one pass. Wilmington's aerial was good for 15 yards, Circleville's four.

As usual the chain used to measure first downs broke late in the game. The officials quickly repaired it.

The Tigers received plenty of encouragement from their parents who were seated in chairs along the south sidelines. Each dad carried a card with the jersey number of his son on it.

Next week the Tigers play host to Hillsboro in another league contest. Lineups for Friday night's games are as follows:

WILMINGTON
Ends: Rudy, Fields;
Tackles: Webb, Hamilton;
Center: Bias;
Guards: Mathews, Scott;
Halfbacks: Smith, Sims, Early, Cordell;
Fullback: Bennis, Suggs;
Quarterback: Fields.

CIRCLEVILLE

Giardello Collects KO Over Bob Boyd
CINCINNATI — Philadelphia's Joey Giardello has moved back into contention for Ray Robinson's middleweight title.

The Italian slugger, off form in recent months, came back Friday night to knock out Bobby Boyd of Chicago in 2:25 of the fifth round.

When the end came, Boyd, the No. 2 middleweight contender, was far behind on points. He had been down once before, late in the first round.

Boyd weighed 160 for the nationally televised battle, scheduled for 10 rounds, and Giardello 159.

Guards: Phifer, McAbee, Conrad, Elser;

Centers: Lemley, Conrad;

Halfbacks: Carpenter, Arledge, Heeter;

Fullback: McClaren;

Quarterbacks: Hosler, Emerine.

Browns Release Tommy James

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Browns will open the National Football League season against the Cardinals in Chicago Sunday without a halfback who began in Massillon with Paul Brown.

Tommy James was cut from the roster today and placed on waivers. He said "I could feel this coming," but "I would like to play this season" with some other club.

Brown said "it was one of the toughest things I've had to do in football. Tommy has given 100 per cent in every way all these years. Players like him don't come along very often."

Judge Helps Man See World Series

DENVER — A prison-bound Englewood, Colo., man who said he wanted to be incarcerated in time to watch the World Series on television got his wish from U. S. District Judge Lee Knous.

The judge, himself an ardent baseball fan, Friday sentenced Byron W. Coffelt, 33, to a two-and-a-half year prison term for mail theft in El Paso, Tex.

Redlegs Hope To Clinch Homer Mark

CHICAGO — The National League flag is nearly out of reach of Cincinnati's Redlegs, but there's one pinnacle they can probably scale—the major league home run mark for one season.

The Reds get a chance today in the first of two games against Chicago's Cubs to at least reach the homer mark of 221 set by the New York Giants in 1947.

And young Frank Robinson, a likely shoo-in for rookie of the year honors, may be able to set a new home run record for first year men by Sunday's final game of the season here with Chicago.

Fund Leaders Prepare Public For House-To-House Calls

Work To Start Monday For All Of District

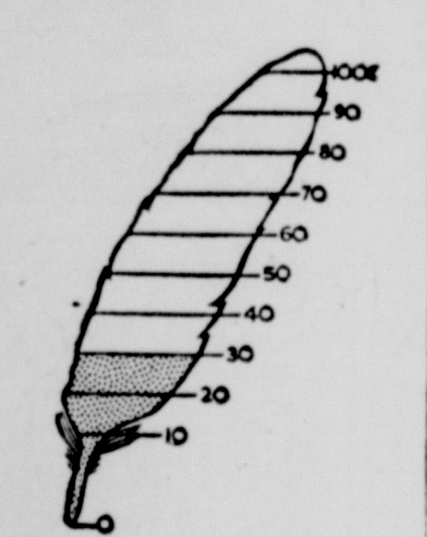

Those Who Already Gave Reminded To Display 'Feathers'

Leaders of the 1956 Pickaway County Community Fund campaign urged the local public today to be prepared for the start of house-to-house solicitations, scheduled Monday throughout the district.

Although this year's drive has already passed the 30 percent mark toward its goal of $28,405, such efforts traditionally place the main weight of their hopes on the residential solicitations—in and outside the cities and villages. The 1956 campaign moved off to a strong start when solicitations began a week ago in the "source of income" groups.

Much of this work in the industry—business—public service category has yet to be completed.

Meanwhile, when residential solicitations begin the first of next week, campaign leaders emphasize that the "Red Feather" stickers should be displayed by all those who have already contributed.

IT'S THE only way we can guard against asking the same people twice, "one volunteer worker explained. "Nobody likes to be asked to make a contribution after one has already been made, and we certainly don't want to be bothering those who have already given what they feel is their just share."

Mrs. George Barnes is in charge of the residential solicitations in Circleville.

House-to-house captains for this work in Circleville were listed by drive leaders as follows:

Inmate Of Jail Plans To Be Neat

DETROIT (AP) — Joseph Andary figured he might as well be neat even if he wasn't going any place for the next 15 days.

Andary, 26, was sentenced to 15 days in jail Friday for driving without an operator's license. Thirteen others were sentenced with him and while everybody milled around Andary walked out the front door of the jail.

Several hours later Andary walked into the jail. Stroking his cheek, he explained, "I just went home for a shave."

Selling A Man On A Toupee Takes Patience And Finesse

TOLEDO (AP) — A man and his hair are easily parted. Getting him to use a substitute is quite another matter, says a Toledoan who has a financial interest in hairline heights.

"It's getting better, but too many men still think it's silly to get a toupee or wig after they've lost their own hair," said Carl H. Blank, a hairgoods shop operator.

Blank, a 55-year-old German immigrant, made 175 toupees for men last year.

That, he noted, not unhappily, was a 75-toupee increase over his male business in 1954.

A wig is a complete set of false hair. A toupee is a smaller piece pasted on the head to cover a bald spot.

As one might guess, the dainty hand of a woman usually is behind the first push a man gets into a toupee shop.

"Most of the time the wife phones and asks few questions about how many men wear toupees," said Blank. "Then we get another call. Sometimes it's the wife again wanting to make an appointment for the husband. Sometimes it's the husband himself.

"Once you get to talk to the man, he's nervous about the procedure. He wants to know why everything he is in private. Often he asks if he can come in at night. We have lots of night appointments."

When the potential customer finally appears, Blank escorts him to a curtained booth and tops him with a sample toupee as close as he can find to the proper shape and color.

"Now right here," said Blank, "is where you have got to use finesse. You don't high pressure or you scare the customer away."

"I don't even suggest that he order anything. I let him look in the mirror for a while, tell him how good he looks and suggest he go home and think it over.

"By then, the battle is won. The man isn't so timid anymore. It's hardly over more than a day or two before he calls and wants to know when can he get a fitting."

For the customer, however, the battle is just beginning. Doubts assail him as he anticipates the reaction of his friends to his new hairline.

No matter how much better he looks; no matter how much younger, he dreads the moment someone will notice the improvement and mention it," Blank said.

Blank himself has a fine head of rather unruly, brown hair. And it's all his. Or is it?

Ohio Old Age Dole Tops National Average In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio exceeded the national average in old age pension payments in July, the Social Security Administration reported Friday.

Ohio's average payment that month, including both state and federal funds, was $60.42 compared with the national average of $55. Colorado led all states with an average payment of $91.88.

Social security officials said they expect all state old age pension payments to increase an average of $5 a month in October.

A law increases the federal contribution starting next month. In July the federal government contributed $20 of the first $25 in individual payments, and then matched the states on a 50-50 basis on payments up to $60. Payments in excess of $60 came entirely in state money.

Beginning Oct. 1, the government will contribute 25 of the first $30 and then 50 per cent of payments up to $60.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — If you were an attractive, 20-year-old girl and saw your picture in a magazine with Elvis Presley's head on your shoulder, what would you do?

Well, Robbie Moore threatened to sue. And Presley, the rock 'n' roll singer, paid her $5,500 in an out of court settlement.

Presley told reporters he had known Miss Moore, a Memphis telephone company clerk, "for many years and had no idea she would object to the picture."

City Commission Gets Rare Query

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP) — Does Schenectady have a zoo? What is the percentage of property tax delinquency? How often does the temperature go above 90 or below 0? How is the population divided with white collar workers?

He got most of the answers.

Ohio Labor Group Out For Bender

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the Ohio State Federation of Labor's Educational and Political League today announced endorsement of Republican Sen. George H. Bender for reelection, and endorsement of the Democratic president and vice president nominees.

The Democratic national platform also was endorsed by the group at a meeting here.

There were no other formal endorsements but the group did voice opinion on some other candidates.

Of the gubernatorial candidates, the group congratulated both major parties for presenting "eminently qualified" candidates.

"We find that Michael V. DiSalle and C. William O'Neill (Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates, respectively) have long and distinguished careers in public service, would compliment the office to which they aspire and command the respect and adoration of all segments of our society," the group's statement said.

The league criticized the record of Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate opposing Republican Bender, saying it "is blemished with a sordid and calloused attitude toward the aims and aspirations of the labor movement. He has on many occasions termed the labor movement in Ohio a 'pressure group' and has been constant in his antagonism toward it."

U.S. Invites Reds To Visit Fall Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has invited Russia and four Soviet satellite countries to send government officials or other qualified observers here to observe the close of the political campaigns in the U. S. presidential elections.

A State Department spokesman was asked whether the invitation was broad enough to open the way for a visit by Soviet Premier Bulganin or Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

He said this "is not intended to invite anyone for a state visit."

Privately, State Department officials made clear they expected persons of much lower rank or non-officeholders such as professors of law or political science.

Press Officer Lincoln White said the invitations were delivered eight or nine days ago to the foreign offices of the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary and Romania.

He reported there had been no acceptances yet.

White said American officials expect that if the Red governments accept, the observers would have American "official" visas which eliminate the requirement of finger printing for entry to this country, a requirement that the Reds bitterly denounced.

The U. S. government would pay the expenses of the observers while they were in this country, traveling about listening to political speeches, observing press, radio and television handling of candidates and issues, and finally watching the voting process itself and the reporting of returns.

White reported that about 63 leaders from 15 other countries of Europe, South America and Asia, will be in the United States during the election period under this country's regular program of bringing leaders or potential leaders from foreign lands.
